ABSTRACT

This study aims to empirically examine the effect of job satisfaction, self efficacy and organizational citizenship behavior on turnover intention in PT. Epson Batam. The total population used in this study was 40 employees. Data collection method using a questionnaire. Data analysis used descriptive percentage analysis, partial regression analysis partially using SPSS for Windows version 26.

The results of this study indicate that the perception of job satisfaction and self efficacy has a negative and insignificant effect and whereas organizational citizenship behavior has a positive and not significant effect on turnover intention. This study concludes that the level of job satisfaction, self efficacy and organizational citizenship behavior does not necessarily affect the level of turnover intention.
